

Historic Properties

The NSCDA-NC owns four historic properties.

The Burgwin-Wright House & Gardens

The Burgwin-Wright House is one of only four colonial structures remaining in Wilmington. Built in 1770-

The NC Dames purchased the property in 1937 with the express intention of making it their headquarter

The Burgwin-Wright House is surrounded by 18th century-style gardens designed by Colonial Williamsb

Visit the Burgwin-Wright House and Gardens web site ...

The Fourth House

The Fourth House was the fourth structure built in the Moravian village of Salem, North Carolina. Compl

In 1966, the NC Dames and Old Salem, Inc. entered into a partnership that continues today. Under the
The NSCDA-NC underwrote a graduate student internship program by Old Salem Museums and Gardens.

Visit the Old Salem Museums and Gardens web site ...

Haywood Hall

Completed in 1799, Haywood Hall was constructed by John Haywood, North Carolina's first treasurer and

The site operates as a museum, interpreting family life from the earliest days of Raleigh through the 1970s.

Haywood Hall is managed and maintained by the non-profit, Haywood Hall, Inc., which leases the property

Visit the Haywood Hall web site ...

Joel Lane Museum House

Built in 1769 by Joel Lane, the house and its owner both played key roles in North Carolina's history.

After Lane's death in 1795, the house had several owners until 1927 when the Wake County Committee purchased it.

Visit the Joel Lane House web site ...

There are more than 84 historic properties across the country that are owned outright or affiliated with the National Society of the Colonial Dames of America and its corporate Societies.

To learn more, visit the NSCDA web site.